RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river is falling very slowly. It is receding rapidly at Cincinnati, but a rise in the Kentucky river prevents its rapid fall here.

For New Orleans .- The new steamer Uncle Sam built at New Albany for Capt. Van Dusen, is adverto leave for New Orleans this evening. The Albany Ledger contains a lengthy description of her, according to which she must certainly be a fine boat. Her dimensions are as follows: length 265 feet, breadth of beam 47 feet, depth of hold 81/2 feet. She will carry about two thousand tons, a capacity far exceeding any other boat on the Western waters. She has seven boilers, each 28 feet long and 40 inches in diameter. Her cylinders are 28 inches in diameter and 10 feet stroke. Her water wheels are 36 feet in diameter and 13 feet buckets. Mr. Campbell, of New Albany, is her chief clerk, and Mr. Moore, late of the Fanny Bullitt, is assist-

The Fanny Bullitt .- This fine summer packet arrived from New Orleans yesterday, and we were furnished by Mr. Judge with late papers and copies of the manifest and memorandum. She will return to New Orleans on Tuesday evening.

The Superior, Capt. Summons, is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day.

The J. H. Done is the Carrollton packet. To Mr. Wells, her agent, we are indebted for a copy of the manifest

The Dove leaves for the Kentucky river at 3 o'clock this evening, and the Forktown is up for Nashville.

We learn from Mr. Kinney, clerk of the steamer Statesman, that the steamer Hastings was lying below Grandview, having burst a steampipe. No one

The Big Sioux river, which empties into the Missouri, and forms the western boundary of Iowa, is found to be navigable for steamers. It is three hundred and fifty miles long. A boat ascended it on the 20th ult. for the first time, and navigated for thirty miles, and found the water deep, navigable, and free from obstruction of any kind. On the Dakotah side the level prairie was found extending as far as the eve could reach, and possessing a soil equal to any in the Northwest.

Capt. Smoker's new boat was launched from the yard of Messrs. Dowerman & Humphreys, in New Albany, on Tuesday afternoon.

THE ELECTION-Fourth District .- We received full returns last night from the Fourth district, which show the election of Talbot over Anderso (Am.) by a majority of from 100 to 150 votes.

We have received no later returns from the Third district. It is still in doubt, though we think Underwood is elected by a small majority.

We have reported returns from several counties in the Ninth district, but as the contest in that district is settled, we shall await the receipt of the official returns before giving them.

STORM IN FLORIDA. - We learn from the Walkulla (Fa.) Times that a very destructive tornado passed over a portion of Jefferson county, in that State, between Wankeenah and Monticello, doing great damage to the crops in its path. The crops of three plantations were destroyed, and it was feared that others had suffered as much. The path of the tornado was about a quarter of a mile wide, but its extent has not yet been ascertained.

The Memphis navy yard has been sold to company of Northern capitalists. The price to be paid his, we learn, $350,000, in five annual payments, the purchasers to give bonds in $140,000 to secure the first two payments. The parties purchasing contemplate establishing various kinds of manufac turing branches, and also a marine or dry dock for steamboat building and repairs. To carry out the latter, the purchasers enter into bonds of $100,000

[From the Home Journal.] HEART TREASURES.

[One sometimes knows by the majestic undulation of slowly elastic movement, and by the glimpse of but the arched instep of a foot, that a faultiess form is under the drapery and veil that are passing by. And so we know by this stately and musical poem that the book by the same writer, which is to be soon issued by Ticknor & Fields, is to be of the same sweet symmetry and admirableness. May we be at the "Taking of the Veil"—off!]—Eds.

But few rare pearls are drifted to our feet,
As on the dreary shore of life we stray,
And when perchance we find them—is it meet
To cast, in careless scorn, such wealth away?
But one in many, of earth's fairest flowers,
Doth wear the gift of fragrance in its heart,
And should we spurn such incense, when the sho
And sunbeams kiss its trembling leaves apart?

Few spicy breezes o'er the desert waste
Upon earth's worn and weary pilgrims blow,
And few sweet springs, which we would stoop to taste,
Along the burning sands of life do flow.
Volcances hide within our vine-clad bills,
And ruined hamlets strew the vales beneath,
Even in those blessed climes where love distills
His sweetness in the south wind's dewy breath.

But seldom in life's forest solitude
We find a rest beneath the bay-tree's shade;
And on few altars, hewn of sandal wood,
The dearest off'rings of the heart are laid.
But should we find such shade, and such a shrine,
Were't meet to turn our weary steps away?
Are they not emblems of a love divine,
Fragrant in death—the sandal wood and bay?

And should we mock such love? Alas! on earth
There is too little for the soul to prize.
But too few blossoms crown the summer's birth,
Too little sunshine droppeth from the skies.
For us to slight their fragrance or their light;
And has my spirit felt, in bitter ruth,
Too oft of hate, and dark deceit the blight,
To scorn affection, hallowed still by truth.

Within a dark and thoughtful eye, the beam
Of love, too strong for proud, stern hearts to hide, Seems beautiful to me, as star-rays seem
Reflected from a deep and rushing tide.
Bright, undimmed, upon that wild, swift river,
The glitt'ring starlight to the sea may roll,
And dreams of sinless love may haunt forever,
Pure and unsullied still man's erring soul.

In an affray at Memphis, on Saturday last, etween Charles Flynn and a man named Webb, the former was fatally injured and died on Monday. Flynn was a steamboat pilot on Red river, and was formerly of this State.

A BEET THAT CAN'T BE BEAT .- Mr. J. Madison Doom has sent us a monster beet, grown at Cane Spring Place, in Bullitt county, that weighs seven and a half pounds. This will be very hard to beat.

It gives us pleasure to state that Mr. Joseph Peterson, who, as was stated yesterday, was thrown out of a buggy, is convalescent.

SKETCHES OF TRAVEL.

Sparta, Danville, and McMinnville R. R.—Bon Air—Mountain Scenery — Crossville—Grassy Cove — Sequatchic Valley — Mountain Lands—Sprit Fall—Falls of Cane Creek—"The Pockets"—Burrit College.

The little town of Sparta, in a beautiful valley of Middle Tennessee, near the Cumberland mountains, is situated on the line of the projected railroad from McMinnville to Danville, Ky. Its citizens anticipate a bright ruture in its progress, as being an important point on the line of the said road (at the crossing of the State road from Knoxville to Nashville), and the contractors are now engaged in grading the same from McMinnville thither. It promises soon to become, for a while at least, the terminus of that road. But the people of the valley are very desirous and quite confident that the road will be completed to Danville in a few years. It is already under contract to Livingston, near the Kentucky line, and, if Kentucktans will do their part, this very important connection between the North and the South will be made much sooner than even the most sanguine have auticipated.

Leaving Sparta for an excursion over the mountain, a distance of three miles brought us to its base. A winding, wearying ascent of two miles then, and Bon Air Springs, at the summit, with its refreshing water and tempting shade, greeted us. Bon Air is truly a delightful spot. Right on the verge of a precipice, it looks out to the west ward on a scene is boundless as beautiful. Indeed one is forcibly impressed with the weakness of his own vision while attempting to penetrate the distant landscapes and secenes of grandeur.

ward on a scene as boundless as beautiful. Indeed one is forcibly impressed with the weakness of his own vision while attempting to penetrate the distant landscapes and scenes of grandeur.

To the eastward the mountain extends away, on a level, to the distance of forty or fifty miles, the soil being generally very light; but along the beautiful rivulets, which are abundant, some choice lots of quite productive land are found. And, although the way at most sea-ons would seem very monotones, it was now quite pleasant, and in many places made exceedingly delightful by the forests of blooming honeysuckles and other wild flowers that charmed the eye and filled the air with fragrance. It was nearly night when we reached Crossville, the county seat of Cumberland, a new county, where we sojourned. In description of this flourishing town, however, I regret that time and space permit me only to say that it consists of one dwelling, one store, one biacksmith shop, and one chickencoop!

The next merning, turning our face southward, a few miles' ride, delighted with the music of winged warblers and the honeyed fragrance of myriads of wild flowers, and we reached Grassy Cove, an interesting natural curiosity. It is a deep, rock-bound basin, containing several square miles, with no apparent outlet. It is indeed a beautiful valley well watered by springs that unite to form a creek, which, rising in the southern flows to the northern extremity and sinks into a cave, often turning a mill. The course of the stream then immediately reverses, and, after running several miles southward, beneath the surface, bursts forth a large spring in Sequatchie Valley. It is proven to be the same, sawdust, &c., having passed through from the Cove. How this beautiful rock-bound Cove was formed is of course a matter of interesting speculation. It has a fine, rich soil, but is not well cultivated. Proceeding toward Sequatchie Valley, now, a hard task was before us. We must ascend a mountain to the height of a housand feet by a rusged path! But we f heads above them; now basking dreamily in the gorgeous sunlight.

An early breakfast partaken, we mounted and rode leisbirtul one than Sequatchief. Not only did we never, but we are seriously disposed to the value of the provided of the provided [Correspondence of Commercial Advertiser.] FOREIGN NEWS BY THE PERSIA.

LONDON, July 24. India is the only theme of public interest, but we are without a word of additional news. An arrival is expected hourly, and for two days exciting rumors have spread at every moment. These rumors are all unfavorable. The confidence that prevailed after the receipt of the last mail has gradually given after the receipt of the last mail has gradually given way. The recapture of Delhi is no longer considered an affair to be accomplished in an instant. Discussion with people who know India has led to a better knowledge of its powers of resistance. It has ditches, and walls of strength and a circuit that only an immense army could cover. Those who complained that General Anson waited for seige artillery instead of dashing at the place at once with his three or four thousand men, and therefore beginning to cool. It is all very true that with every day's decool. It is all very true that with every day's de lay of retribution the prospects of mutiny elsewhere lay of retribution the prospects of mutiny elsewher are awfully increased. But what would the pros pect if we were to make the attempt and fail, and thus give the insurgents not merely an established command at Delhi but likely over all the approach-

It is satisfactory, however, to be able to announce that the Government continue to act vigorously. The day before yesterday, six of the largest screw steamers in the country were chartered from private companies for the immediate conveyance of troops. The great expectation is that the events now passing will lead to an entire removal of the power of government from the East India Company, and its assumption by the crown. This step can be taken at any time by a Parliamentary vote, the term granted them by a renewal of the charter having expiren in 1854. One difficulty in the way, or at all events a point requiring good management, would be the taking over of the India debt, which amounts to $80,000,000 in this country, and $250,000,000 in India.

been arrested, and they are said, after the usual mode of police captives, to have confessed everything, and to have denounced Mazzini, Ledru Rollin, and two othor persons mamed Mazarenti, and Campanella as their accomplices. It is easy, however to denounce absent men, who dare not enter the country to defend themselves. One of the number Campanella, who is at present in London, has written to the Times to give, as far as he is concerned, "a formal denial to such an absurd accusation." Already, therefore, the prestige of the discovery has received damage. Nevertheless, it is expected that on the evidence, real or pretended, of the three prisoners, the absent offenders will be tried in contumacy, and receive the mockery of a sentence. The French Government assert that they knew of the plot some time back, but that with the delicate jealousy for the maintenance of political freedom, they would not announce it during the elections, lest it should bias the people in favor of the Imperial candidates.

At hone, apart from Indian matters, the only question that has raised the slightest interest has been that of the admission of the Jews to Parliament. The Commons will not submit to the last repulse of the Lords. Lord John Russell is in favor of bringing in a bill declaring each house the best judge of its own privileges as regards the admission of members. This would remove the difficulty if the Lords would assent to it. But no one conceives that they will have the grace to do so. Still, most likely, the experiment will be tried so as to offer them another chance. Many members, however, are anxious that the House should admit Baron Rothschild at once by a resolution to that effect, and, although the government are opposed to such a collision with the Lords, it seems probable that it will come sooner or later. Meanwhile, Baron Rothschild has resigned his seat to give the electors of London an opportunity to make another protest by reelecting him. No opposition is expected, and in any case he is certain of victory. The a heat which might excite well founded fears as to its influence on the gutta percha. If we are not misinformed, the heat of the sun destroyed many miles of the wire by melting out the gutta percha while the cable was lying in Glasse & Elliott's yard. Proper precautions should be taken to avert risk from this point.

We have already explained to our readers how the cable is coated with closely woven spiral wires, to prevent damage to the core in paying out; but, in consequence of the two halves having been made at different places—one at Birkenhead, by Messrs. Newall, and the other at Greenwich, by Glasse & Elliott, a most egregious blunder has been committed, been committed. It will scarcely be credited, but it is nevertheless true, that the twist of the spiral wires of the Birken-head half is in exactly the opposite direction to the twist of the wires in the half made at Greenwich. Thus, when joined in the center of the Atlantic they thus, when joined in the center of the Atlantic they will form a right hand and a left hand screw, and the tendency of each will be to assist the other to untwist, and expose the core. By attaching a solid weight to the center joint it is hoped this difficulty and danger may be overcome; but none attempt to conceal that the mistake is much to be regretted. We are informed that Messrs, Glasse & Elliot had works 100 miles of their experience the college. nearly 100 miles of their portion of the cable com-pleted before Messrs. Newall commenced theirs, and that therefors the fault rests with the firm which be-

With a cable of such extreme lightness and no great strength, and attached to a vessel like the Agamemnon, the slightest possible check or hitch occurring would part it like a thread. India.—There is nothing later from India. Intelligence was hourly expected when the Persia sailed. All sorts of rumors were continually started, but it was supposed they had reference to stock-jobbing operations, and obtained but little credence. The Mutiny.—From papers laid before Par-liament relative to the Indian mutinies, it appears that the Sepoys did make serious objections and remonstrances against being required to bite off the ends of cartridges greased with the fat of pigs and cows and that the com-mander-in-chief had instituted experiments to ascertain whether beeswax could not be substituted for tallow. In the meantime orders had been given that the biting off of the cartridge ends shall be abolished in platon exercises.

Cotton has been in extensive demand during the entire week, and prices have steadily advanced; the closing rates being % to 3-16 dearer than on Friday last. The greatest improvement has been in middling Orleans, which are becoming very scarce. Owing to the free purchases of the trade, they have partially replenisned their previously exhausted stocks, and may temporarily withdraw from the market with the view of producing a reaction; holders, on the contrary, find their position greatly strengthened by the small quantity coming forward, and the limited stock now here. In Manchester, yarns are in great demand, at higher prices; but goods do not move up in proportion. We quote—Middling Orleans 8/4d; Mobile 8/4d Howeds 8 3-164. Present estimated stock 513,884 bales, including 423,688. American; against 777,683, including 639,709 American, for corresponding period of last year.

The sales to-day are estimated at 10,000 bales, at very full prices for all descriptions.

Breadstuffs—The trade has been dull and of limited extent, at irregular and somewhat lower prices than those ruing during the last week. The heaviest concessions have been made on low grades of both wheat and flour, say 3d to 5d on wheat and 9d to 1s on four; whilst good to choice qualities, from their scarcity, have been placed, in small parcels, at a decline of 2d to 3d on wheat and of 6d nof four. The better grodes of American wheat have very little direct competition, and will continue until after harvest in demand for "mixing purposes." The finer descriptions of flour are subjected to a very trying competition from French, which is being pressed upon the market with expenses.

SATURDAY EVENING, AUGUST 8, 1857.

HURRAH FOR JEFFERSON COUNTY .- We have received from our friend D. T. Applegate, of this county, a sample of his oat crop, raised on the Jas. Reed farm. It is the largest head of oats we have ever seen, measuring twenty-nine and a half inches. Mr. Applegate is great on oats.

We have also received from Mr. John Herr, of this county, a hemp stalk, which is nearly fifteen feet in length. Who can beat it?

THE GOODWOOD CUP.-A gentleman of this city now in England writes home that Mr. Ten Broeck, the owner of Pryor and Pryoress, which he has entered for this race, is very confident of success. The odds given against the American horses among betting men are one hundred to ten. The race took place on the 30th ult. We shall receive the result on Monday or Tuesday.

THE DETROIT BEAR STORY .- The Detroit Free Press not only insists upon it that a ravenous she bear did eat up a Detroit boy within sight of the city, but that the same ugly bear did, a few days afterward, attack a Dutchman about six miles east of the city and gave him a more than a fraternal hug, from which he was rescued by his dogs and companions armed with axes. The bear again ran off and the Dutchman survived.

The Detroit Tribune pokes fun at the bear stories of the Press and gives a column account of the "coroner's inquest on the bar," held by Justice Purdy. The body was produced in court and identified by the Dutchman whose dinner was stolen by the "bar." The testimony of a single witness is all we have room for, and is conclusive:

Dr. Terry sworn: Am a practising physician; have resided in Detroit several years, if not more; have examined the stomach of the "bar" which was handed me on Saturday last; it had a generally healthy appearance, although the mucous membrane was evidently somewhat irritated by causes which I will evidently somewhat irritated by causes winch I will state presently; I tested for strychnine, arsenic, morphine, and a small boy; used powerful agents; the usual tests for the first named three, skillfully and patiently applied, failed to show any trace of these substances; have no hesitation in saying that there was no such poison in the stomach of the "bar;" the diaphragm was somewhat distended, the vesicles were evidently inflamed, ædema of the submucus areolar tissue was visible, and a sonorous ronchi distinctly discernible; I found about a quart of ripe berries still undigested, a segment of an or the berries still undigested, a segment of an apple pie, a link of sausage, portions of a tin pail and dinner basket, and one complete half of a copy of the Pree Press, including the first and second editorial sides, local column, &c.; should think this latter might be the cause of the inflammatory and other symptoms apparent in the stomach; the bookshold and my own experience corrobogates the posiother symptoms apparent in the stomach; the books hold, and my own experience corroborates the position that some poison, like alcohol, the Free Press, &c., are insoluble, that no digestion can reduce them to chyle, and that the fact that they are so unchangeable and unassimilative is one of the worst characteristics of their baneful nature; this portion of the Free Press contained a lying and deceptive editorial on Kansas affairs, another about the Ohio Treasury defalcation, a third, about the double-headed Minnesota convention, a full account of a boy's being eaten up by a bear, last Tuesday, and the official proceeding of the Common Council, besides other matters not necessary to enumerate, as these are matters not necessary to enumerate, as these are enough in all conscience; the presence of this large quantity of unnatural material undoubtedly had much to do in producing the unfavorable appearance I have before spoken of; I have no hesitation in giving this as my decided opinion; I used a solution and tuncture of marbles, jack-knives, three cent pieces, and cardy and if anything will fatch the "trappine". and candy, and if anything will fetch the "remains" of a small boy, this test will; I could not see that any effect was produced on the contents of the stomach when it was used; have often brought a good sized boy the distance of two blocks, on a sharp trot, by an application of this test.

TEA TASTING .- A New York correspondent gives the following particulars of the effects of "tea tasting" and sampling upon the constitutions of those engaged in the business:

The death of a famous tea broker in this city lateof justice be subserved by such an examination, by worder if any of your readers at the West know that their fastidiousness in the choice of the herbwhich cheers, but not inebriates, is the cause of the establishment of a profession—called "tea tasting"—which is as certain death to a man as the continued practice of opium eating. The success of the tea broker, or taster, depends upon the trained accuracy of his nose and palate, his experience in the wants of the American market and a keen business tact. If he has these qualities in high cultivation, he may make from $20,000 to $40,000 per annum while he lives, and die of ulceration of the lungs. He overhauls a cargo of tea, classifies it, and determines the value of each sort. In doing this, he first looks at the color of the leaf and the general cleanliness of it. He next takes a quantity of the herb in his hand, and, breathing his warm breath on it, he sunfix up the fragrance. In doing this, he draws into his lungs a quantity of irritating and ly calls to mind the curious nature of the business. herb in his hand, and, breathing his warm breath on it, he suuffs up the fragrance. In doing this, he draws into his lungs a quantity of irritating and stimulating dust, which is by no means wholesome. Then, sitting down at the table in his office, on which is a long row of little porcelain cups and a pot of hot water, he "draws" the tea and tastes the infusion. In this way he classifies the different sorts to the minutest shade, marks the different prices, and is then ready to compare his work with the inand is then ready to compare his work with the invoice. The skill of these tasters is fairly marvelous, but the effect of the business on their health is, as I have said, ruinous. They grow lean, nervous, and consumptive. At the end of a hard day's work they feel and act as fidgetty and cross as a hysteric

THE INHABITANTS OF COREA.—Our hitherto scanty information respecting the habits, manners, and social customs of the inhabitants of the Corean Peninsula has lately received an addition in a com-munication to a Russian newspaper from a Russian officer who served on the frigate Pallas in the years omeer who served on the ringate Paniss in the years 1852-4. He describes the Coreans as being usually of middling statue, broad-shouldered, and of a dark color. They all have black hair, course features, high Mongolian cheek-bones, and eyes small, and often oblique. The entire coast of the country is densely populated, and in its southern portion there is a town every two-thirds of a mile. The inis densely populated, and in its southern portion there is a town every two-thirds of a mile. The inhabitants dress universally in white linen. A sho t coat, with wide sleeves—the size of which on the officials indicates their rank—wide linen pantaloons drawn over short stockings and fastened tight at the knees, and straw shoes, form the entire costume of the lower classes. Shirts are not worn by the common people. Their hats are plaited of black hair, two feet in diameter, open at the top. It would be difficult to say what purpose they serve, pretecting neither from the sun nor rain.

The males never cut their hair, but comb it straight upward and tie it in a bushy bunch on the crown of the head. The women are lighter in color than the men, with red cheeks, which is seldom seen in Asiatic females. They bear an indistinct likeness to the women of the Tartar tribes. Their hair is short and brushed from the back of the neck to the ears. They wear short white sacks, scarcely reaching to the waist, and fastened together above with pins, and trowsers like those of the men, above which is worn a large petticoat. They bind their infants to their back by a band passing over their shoulders. The unmarried members of the community wear their hair hanging in queus like the Chinese. Beards are rare and are held in high respect. Compared with the Chinese and Japanese, the Coreans are unrefined; compared with Europeans they are semi-barbarous. In point of morality, they, perhaps, excel the Japanese; but they are exceedingly devoted to whisky drinking, and are most decided pilferers. Cattle and chickens they never slaughter. The first they use in their farming operations, and the latter to answer in the place of clocks to indicate the time.

Madeline Smith, leaves her liable to be tried again on the same charge, if fresh light should be thrown on the matter. Under the Scotch law the finding of the jury is simply a declaration of suspended judgment.

We have received from Kirk & Clarke Harper's Weekly and from Crump & Welsh Burton's Cyclopedia of Wit and Humor.

Our New York exchanges are almost exclusively occupied with the Cunningham and Burdell baby case. An editorial in the Express reviews the proceedings of Wednesday as follows:

THAT BABY CASE.—Public curiosity on Wednesday was as keen as ever to learn the newest developments in the extraordinary sequel to the Burdell murder; but the testimony elicited on the investigation before Judge Davison was not of much importance as to the facts at issue. Mrs. Cunningham's daughters—Helen first and Augusta next—were both put upon the stand, and, though extremely depressed by this scandalous proceeding, were subjected to a searching examination as to their knowledge of the supposititious baby. Of course they knew nothing about it. They had considered their mother encetute, and very naturally were put out of the way when events were taking place regarding which their evidence would be important. Miss Helen retired to bed at 9 o'clock on Monday night; Miss Augusta was unwell and not in the house THAT BABY CASE .- Public curiosity on Wednes night; Miss Augusta was unwell and not in the house at all—so neither of them could tell whether their mother was absent between nine and ten o'clock, at which time it is alleged she went for the baby.

Late in the afternoon, Dr. Catlin was admitted State's evidence by Mr. Hall, and made an affidavit, in which he alleges that Mrs. Cunningham is suffering from an attack of cholera morbus; that he extends from the extended of the control amined her person on Monday night, and saw she was not in any way with child, and had not been; finally, that he was present at no birth that night, and first saw the child dressed. The Doctor's affiand first saw the child dressed. The Doctor's ani-davit is very unsatisfactory. It tells us what was well known before, that the room and bed-clothes were stained with blood taken from a pail. He swears he doesn't know who brought the blood to the house, but he says nothing about who sprinkled it on the sheets. He does not mention Dr. Uhl's name in his whole affidavit, and is careful to say nothing about his own knowledge of the plot beforehand. It may be interesting to compare some parts of Dr. Catlin's and Dr. Uhl's affidavits, relative to the scene in the bedroom and Mrs. Cunningham's condition on Monday night:

The Times comments on the affidavit of Dr. Cat-BOM DE. CATLIN'S AFFIDA- FROM DR. UHL'S AFFIDAVIT.

The Times comments on the affidavit of Dr. Cat-

It will be observed that this is very carefully drawn as to "omissions." Only leading points are mentioned, and yet the certificate of the District-Attorney shows that Dr. C. made him a very full statement. What are the matters kept back? Did Dr. C. make any revelations? Does he know aught of the murder from Mrs. C? Perhaps there are some curious developments behind it.

The Times has the following additional paragraph: Yes'erday afternoon, between 1 and 2 o'clock, Justice Davison, accompanied by Professor Barker and Dr. Dewers, went to No. 31 Bond street, for the purpose of testing, by a professional obstetric examination, whether Mrs. Cunningham had or had examination, whether Mrs. Cunningham had or had not given birth to a child within a few days. It was represented to her that not only would the ends of justice be subserved by such an examination, but her own innocence would be proven, if it should be shown that she had, within a day or two, become a mother. She firmly declined to submit to such a test until she had consulted with her counsel, Judge Dean. Accordingly, the examination was postponed till 10 o'clock this morning, to give her time to confer with the ex-Judge.

When very young she was "kept in" by her father tightly; for her father had resolved that she should be like no other woman in the world. Of evil she knew nothing save such as she read about in her bible and catechism, and then it would do her good. No newspaper should be allowed to soil her soul with the contaminating daily business and crime of the world; instead of reading the Times to crime of the world; instead of reading the Times to "papa," she should step down to their minister, good old Dr. Beattie, who had always shown her great attention, and read good books to him, now that he was getting old, and not so well able to do so himself as he once had been. And so things might have gone, but a girl can't be kept forever in the nursery, and when Madeleine stepped into a boarding school she found matters of which she knew nothing before. Knowledge is the source of resistance, and the only foundation of conquest. But she had not knowledge, and so she fell.

And thus it came about that in the evening she might be at the pure, happy fireside of the pastor, might be at the pure, happy fireside of the pastor, and at midnight in the unboly embrace of a lover whom she could not meet under her father's roof, except unger the cover of darkness. She had told except under the cover of darkness. She had told that father of the love she bore the strange youth of the Anglo-French isles; but he had ordered her to desist thinking of poverty when she might and must have riches. James Smith was at one period of his career in a similar position to that occupied by the poor worthy man who secures a match that raises him at once above his old class; but that fact he had conveniently forgotten by the time L'Angellier arrived to court his daughter. Restriction was followed by the worst results in both instances.

followed by the worst results in both instances.

The catechism was exchanged for the "Lucretia" of Lytton and lower-class horrors from Holywell street. She might go to the minister's, but she would also see her "dear Emile." It is not improb-able that the romance of night meetings and clanable that the romance of night meetings and clandestine letter-writing gave a fictitious interest to the swain and the affection, and confirmed that which under the mother's superintending eye, and in the honest, penetrating light of day, might have been broken up very quickly; but the girl was apparently crushed into a corner where no human being could grow into healthy development, and thus, alas, the mellifiquous name of Madeleine came to be almost thrown back again to that from which it came—the name of Magdalene. Sweet, innocent little Mini of the nursery was no more.—Edinburg Witness.

THE SKIFF STORY.—The statement published by us on Monday, signed by Benjamin F. Wood, of Keckuk, fowa, was sent to us for publication by the signer. It appeared to be a most extraordinary occurrence, but we had no opportunity of cross-questioning the witness, and published it without comment. The editor of the Cannelton Reporter had an interview with the author of the tale, and, from the improbable and contradictory statements made by him is fully persuaded that there has been foul play. It appears that Wood persuaded Lewis to purchase a skiff at Portland, Ky., to make the passage of the Ohio river with him to Cairo, at a season when steamers were running without any danger of interruption. This would seem to be a most singular freak, and too improbable to be credited without some extraordinary reason for it. The editor of the Reporter says:

This is a strange affair, and we believe that there

(From the Evansville Journal.)

This is a strange affair, and we believe that there has been foul play, and that the whole story is a base fabrication. This fellow Wood tells two stories. He said to us that the accident occurred near Alton, to others he said near Leavenworth. He said to us that he held on to the skiff, and with his feet kicked it on shore, to others he said that his hallooing aroused a man on shore, who came to him in a skiff and took him on shore. He said it was very dark aroused a man on shore, who came to him in a skiff and took him on shore. He said it was very dark when the accident occurred, but that Lewis looked at his watch at 20 minutes after one; that they had no light on the skiff, he said; he had not written to Lewis's father or to Parson; he said he should remain in Cannelton several days; then that he should leave on the Northerner that night. We asked him why they did not go to St. Louis railroad. His reply was, that they wanted to see the Ohio river. Then he expressed regrets for the accident, and said it was his suggestion to purchase the skiff. RELICS OF ANTIQUITY .- We have before us a a number of coins, brought to this country by Rev. W. F. Williams, missionary of the American Board at Mosul. These, with other valuable relics, are frequently found by the natives in different places in the east, while making excavations. One of these is a gold coin, bearing the name and face of Arsinoe Philadelphou, the sister and wife of Ptoiers, Philadelphou, who together founded the celemy Philadelphos, who together founded the cele-brated Alexandrian Library. It dates back to about two hundred and eighty years before Christ! It is about the size of a sovereign, is a beautiful coin, and seems as bright and fresh as if it had but just come from the mint.

The others are silver staters (the coin which Peter took from the fish), and are of the coinage of Alexander the Great, and of the Syrian kings Antiochus Epiphanes, who attempted to overthrow Judaism and scattered swine's flesh about the temple, Antiochus Eupator, Antiochus Euergetes, Demetrius Soter, &c., the latest being about one hundred and sixty years before Christ.

There is an old Athenian silver coin, found on the plain of Arbela, where the decisive battle was fought between Alexander the Great and Darius.

It was probably paid to some Greek soldier who there met his death. Mr. Williams also has a Greek penny, with "Cæsar's image and superscription."

There is something very impressive in these old coins, which were old when our Saviour walked the earth. They are all in good preservation, and the dies are remarkably sharp and clear; showing that the ancients perfectly understood this art.

A friend has stated to us the striking fact that had the gold coin, estimating it at $18, its value by

A friend has stated to us the striking rate that has the gold coin, estimating it at $18, its value by weight, been put at interest at seven per cent, at the time of its coinage, its value now could not have been computed in numerals. He began the computed the computed at these hundred years when he tation, but stopped at three hundred years, when he found it would have reached $19,263,992,832.

MISTAKING THE HYMN.—A young clerical gentleman relates the following anecdote of one of his Dutch brethren: The old fellow was about commencing one of his spiritual exercises, when to the disadvantage of his being a little near-sighted was added the poor light of a country church. After clearing his throat, he gave out the hymn, prefacing it with the application.

clearing his throat, he gave out the span, it with the apology.

De light is bad, mine eyes ish dim,
I cannot see to read dish hymn.

The clerk, supposing it was the first stanza of the hymn, struck up the tune of common metre. The old fellow, taken somewhat aback by this turn of affairs, corrected the mistake by saying-

I didn't mean to sing dish hymn,
I only meant, mine eyes ish dim.

The clerk, still thinking it a continuation of the couplet, finished in the preceding strain. The old man at this waxed wroth, and exclaimed, at the top

I tink ter tyvel's in you all. Dat vash no hymn to sing at all.

"that your majesty did not attend chapel to-day, that you might know who came to worship God, and who to flatter the king." to flatter the king."

HEADACHE AND DEBILITY .- Mr. Silas J. Liscomb, of Birmingham, says:
"I have found in Borhave's Holland Bitters a remedy for Headache and Deblity. My wife has also used it with the greatest benent."

Mr. A. S. Nicholson, of Pittsburg, also remarks that he has experienced much relief from its use for Headache.

Headache.

Take a half tea-spoonful three times a day, an hour before meals. Eat moderately, and then of wholesome food, and you will find this is really a remedy for Sick and Nervous Headache, Weakness of any kind, Costiveness, and Piles. Being perfectly simple in composition, it may be taken without fear by the invalid. Possessing a fine aromatic flavor, it is very grateful to the debilitated stomach.

First and Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Lousville, for the treatment of Private Diseases, such as Gon. orrhoea, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other de rangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His long experience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

Strictures of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

Stminal Wrakness.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subject unfit for either business or society, and causing premature old age.

If Persons abroad, by writing and stating their cases, with a fee enclosed (post-paid), can have the medicine sent to their address, with necessary directions for using the same.

All the citizens of the 7th ward who are favorable to the organization of an artillery company are requested to meet at the Relief Engine-House on Saturday night, August 8th, at 8 o'clock precisely, as it is of great importance to have an artillery company in the city.

Deafness cured, with success hitherto unknown, by Dr. Jones, now practicing at the Gal House in this city, where he has returned by solicitation and will remain a short time.

Artificial eyes inserted, in movement and appearance as perfect as the natural eye (all cases can be suited, whether the eye be partly or wholly gone), by Dr. Jones, now practicing at the Galt House in this city.

Stammering and impediments of speech cured by Dr. Jones, of Philadelphia, presumed to be the only man now living who can and does cure this humiliating impediment. He will practice at the Gala House for a few weeks, where he has returned by numerous requests.

We are requested to state for the benefit of persons wishing to pass between Louisville and New Albany that the ferry boats between Portland and New Albany make a trip back and forth, at 9 o'clock P. TROYE'S ORIENTAL PAINTINGS. — Reader, have you been to see these splendid paintings? If not, by all means you should go. You are missing a sight that will fill your soul full of glorious sentiments of love and beauty.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and this expression will seldom be more fully realized than in viewing these truly grand and magnificant works of art. There has been nothing on exhibition here since Du Buff's Adam and Eve to be compared with them. They are almost living and breathing representations of the subjects portrayed; even the "Dead Sea," with the visible and manifest malediction of God upon it, is death altre amidst the gloom and grandeur that overwhelmns it, making desolation itself still more desolate. Indeed, many persons travel thousands of miles and really see no more, in viewing the same places and things, than you behold in these five paintings—the Dead Sea, the Jordan at the spot where Christ was baptised, the lovely Sea of Galilee with its many sacred associations, the Syrian Ploughman, and a Bazzar in Damascus Go and see them and indee for yourself. the Syrian Ploughman, and a Bazaar in Damascus the Syrian Ploughman, and a Bazaar in Damascus Go and see them and judge for yourself. You cannot help receiving into your soul a sense, a feeling that you can never lose—a something that will inform you of an hour spent whence you may date henceforward and forever.

Corner Main and Fourth sts., Louisville, Ky.

I would respectfully invite the attention of merchants and others visiting the city to my large and elegant assortment of TRUNKS, which I am prepared to offer at least twenty-five per cent. Lower than any other establishment in the city. My stock embraces a greater variety of Trunks than is kept than any other bouse in the western country. Many of the styles are entirely new and cannot fail to please those in want of a Trunk both as regards price and quality. The many advantages which I possess over the other houses in the city, such as manufacturing my own boxes, finishing my own leather, importing my own material, e.c., enable me to offer my trunks at much lower prices than any other establishment either in this city or Cincinnati, Merchante and others will be consulting their own interests by giving me a call before making their purchases. #### EVENING BULLETIN.

More About Mrs. Cunningham. — Mrs. Cunningham kept up the delusion admirably, being restless at times, groaning occasionally, and asking about every ten minutes to have her forehead cooled with ice-water. She was visited in the forenoon by her counsel, Judge Dean. Mr. Clinton, another of her counsel, did not visit her. Her other lawyer, Mr. Stafford, was for half an hour in consultation with her. What took place at these interviews we are not able to report, of course, as the talking was done, mainly, in whispers. Augusta Cunningham done, mainly, in whispers. Augusta Cunningham is at present in the country, but Helen and her youngest sister are at home. The two boys were sent to school some months ago. The family is, therefore, not large, there being no boarders in the

Under the regulations of Captain Dilkes, who has charge of the premises, and who has six policemen detailed to watch them, no person is allowed to leave or enter with the exception of the lawyers above named and a physician, Dr. Isaac Smith, who was nt yesterday, by the District Attorney, to minister the lady in her peculiar condition.

Mrs. Cunningham pleaded, yesterday, at numerous intervals, that her "dear baby," her "legal baby," her "poor murdered Doctor's baby" might be brought to her. "Why have they taken my baby from me?" she demanded. Then she would half raise herself in bed and protest that never was a woman so ill-treated before. She was very anxious woman so ill-treated before. She was very anxions to see the newspapers, but none were allowed to be brought inside the house.

How Mrs. Cunningham's Counsel Took It.—We understand that Mr. Clinton "washes his hands" of Mrs. Cunningham altogether. At least, he is reported to have so expressed himself yesterday morning, in the Court of General Sessions. He did not call at No. 31 Bond street, but went out of town at an early hour. We will not vouch for the fact, but the rumor, among the legal profession, is that the fees of Messrs. Clinton and Dean were to be derived from the estate of Dr. Burdell, when Mrs. Cunningfrom the estate of Dr. Burdell, when Mrs. Cunning

From the affidavit of the physician who procured the child at the Bellevue Hospital for the purpose of entrapping Mrs. Cunningham, it appears that he marked the child with lunar caustic, behind each ear and under each arm, and that he tied about the umbilical cord a minute edging of a pocket handkerchief.
